Five Ways to Enjoy the Tokyo International Film Festival (TIFF)!

TIFF is one of the biggest international film festivals in Asia, where directors, actors, journalists, and film-related people from all over the world come together. All movie fans, from children to adults-- anyone who love movie--in invited to join in the excitement. Here are some pointers that will help you enjoy the festival even more, even if you've never attended before.

The 25th TIFF will take place October 20-28, 2012 at Roppongi Hills and other venues in Tokyo.

Point 1 Get close to the stars on the Green Carpet

Every year the opening event of the festival attracts a great deal of attention. Exciting guests from Japan and abroad all come together on the Green Carpet. It's your chance to see these stars up close in their most stylish attire.

→Come to Keyakizaka Street adjoining Roppongi Hills. It's free to everyone.

Point 2 Films that you can only see at the festival

Enjoy a rich variety of movies, including topical entertainment fare, notable foreign films not scheduled for theatrical release in Japan, and Japanese independent productions. You are sure to find something that satisfies your film desire.

Point 3 Direct contact with directors and actors at Q&A sessions

One of the pleasures of film festivals is the personal appearances by actors and directors who exchange thoughts with fans about their movies. During the Q&A sessions, viewers can ask them direct questions about the films they have just watched. The nine days of the festival will feel like a dream as you encounter the actual filmmakers at the movies you see.

Point 4 All-night events showing movies until dawn

As usual, this year there will be special all-night film events. There's nothing more exciting than watching movies until morning while enjoying visits from film-related guests. TIFF also holds outdoor screenings for families during the festival, as well as events and special features that can be enjoyed by movie fans of all ages.

Point 5 Connect to TIFF via SNS!
